

The Sun is the closest star to Earth.

It is located approximately 93 million miles away.

The Sun provides the light and heat necessary for life on Earth.

It is composed mainly of hydrogen and helium.

The process of nuclear fusion inside the Sun produces its energy.

The Sun has a surface temperature of about 5,500 degrees Celsius.

Sunspots are darker, cooler areas on the Sun's surface.